

FOODTECH

Zomato receives FSSAI notice for operations in Dehradun

Zomato told to get a food safety licence by Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI); foodtech unicorn says will be 'fully compliant' with Gurugram-based foodtech unicorn Zomato this week received a notice from the FSSAI, asking the company to get a food safety licence by the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI). Zomato says it will be 'fully compliant' with the regulations.

In an email response, Zomato confirmed that it had received a notice from the FSSAI for its operations in Dehradun. In a response, Zomato said it was "in full compliance" with the FSSAI regulations and that it had received a notice from the FSSAI for its operations in Dehradun. Zomato said it was "in full compliance" with the FSSAI regulations and that it had received a notice from the FSSAI for its operations in Dehradun.

Also read: What QYO's 'experiment' with biryani means for the foodtech space in India

It has been reported that Zomato has been given seven days to provide the details sought by the FSSAI.

Further commenting on the notice, the spokesperson said: "Our restaurant search and discovery platform has democratised the food industry in India. We are committed to providing a safe and hygienic food experience to our customers. We are currently working on getting the necessary licences for our operations in Dehradun."

Since the end of last year, Zomato has been pushing the pedal to further grow in different cities across the country. After a successful fundraising round, Zomato has been expanding its operations in various cities across India.

Zomato claims it carries out close to a million deliveries a day. Last month, Zomato had raised \$40 million in funding led by Sequoia Capital.

The startup claims to have over 22 million monthly orders, and claims to have a delivery fleet of 1.5 lakh partners after a successful fundraising round.

Want to make your startup journey smooth? YS Education brings a comprehensive Funding Course, where you also get a chance to raise funds from your network. Enroll now.

ZOMATOONLINE FOOD DELIVERYFOODTECHFOODTECHSTARTUP

